

User License

Copyright Protection

Users may use, share, or adapt the contents, provided they adhere to the guidelines outlined in the HEF User License:

- Cite the article properly, including the author(s), journal, title, volume, issue, page numbers, DOI, and the link to the published version on the HEF website.
- No part of a published paper should be used in another work without licensing.
- Users are free to use, share, and adapt the contents, provided that proper credit is given to the original authors.
- If the article includes other works' contents, ensuring that its use follows the copyright rules.

Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License (CC BY 4.0)

The HEF User License is based on the principles of the Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License (CC BY 4.0), designed to facilitate the free use, sharing, and adaptation of contents while ensuring the original authors receive proper credit for their works. This license empowers users to leverage educational, research, and creative materials for personal, commercial, and academic purposes, as long as they follow the specified guidelines.

By using materials under the HEF User License, you contribute to the open exchange of knowledge, fostering collaboration and innovation, while respecting the rights of authors.

Guidelines for Using Content Under the HEF User License (CC BY 4.0)

Attribution

- You must give appropriate credit to the original author(s) of their work. This includes providing the author's name, the title of the works, and a link to the original source.

Permitted Uses

- The contents may be used, shared, and adapted for any purpose, including commercial uses, provided the attribution requirements are met.

Modifications and Derivative Works

- You can modify the original content (e.g., by altering, transforming, or building upon it) as long as you follow the attribution requirements and describe the modifications.
- If you distribute modified contents, the new versions must be licensed under the same HEF User License (CC BY 4.0), ensuring that the same freedoms are granted to others.

No Endorsement or Affiliation

- The use of the work must not imply that the original author endorses or is affiliated with any modifications or new works unless explicitly stated by the author.

Restrictions

- Contents cannot be used in any way that may infringe upon applicable laws, including using the work in a manner that promotes harm, defamation, hate speeches, or illegal activities.
- The contents should not be used in a way that could harm the reputation of the original authors or violate other legal or ethical considerations.

No Warranty

- The work is provided "as-is" without any warranties or representations regarding the accuracy, completeness, or fitness for any particular purpose.
- The original authors and HEF make no claims about the use or suitability of the content.

Legal Compliance

- Users are responsible for ensuring their uses of the contents complied with all applicable laws, including local, national, or international regulations.
